

Oil Markets in the Age of Energy Transition

Friday, March 24, 2023

8:00 am - 5:00 pm (CDT)

Topics Addressed

Taught by oil market experts, this course deliver a concise and powerful history of the oil market, oil demand and supply, and geopolitics in order to understand the present and how the future may unfold. It provides an overview of oil and the forces shaping the oil and energy markets as the energy transition moves ahead.

Key Benefits

Questions that the course will answer:

- Oil's role in world energy consumption, the economy, and geo-politics
- What is oil used for? From cars, trucks to pharmaceuticals—and everything in between
- Understand the history of oil
- Geography of oil demand
- Geography of oil production and a primer on crude quality
- What is OPEC, OPEC+ and non-OPEC?
- Gain insight into the basics of crude oil pricing and trading
- The energy transition: What does it mean for the future of oil?

Course Outline

- Section 1: What is oil and the oil industry?
- Section 2: Oil's roles in energy demand
- Section 3: Basics of oil supply and demand
- Section 4: History of oil and oil prices
- Section 5: Crude oil quality
- Section 6: Crude oil trade flows
- Section 7: Oil and the energy transition
- Section 8: Oil trading and Pricing