

Loan Reference Data

Validated loan terms and conditions data with intraday updates of corporate actions

Loan investors require current and accurate loan data to run credit analysis, conduct performance attribution and identify new investment opportunities. The dynamic and opaque nature of the bank loan market presents firms with significant challenges in tracking loan performance and assessing risk, as the loans undergo amendments and restructures without any standard form of public notifications. With loans frequently re-pricing, restructuring, and undergoing amendments, the original terms and conditions of a loan can become stale very quickly.

We provide subscribers with current terms and conditions as well as corporate actions data for public and private bank loans in the syndicated loan market. The superior accuracy of our data enables traders and portfolio managers to minimize errors when bidding on and monitoring portfolios of loans. We also provide the essential inputs into loan managers' surveillance tools, valuation models, credit analysis, and performance attribution processes.

Our Loan Reference Data is sourced directly from executed credit agreements, funding memos, agent notices and public filings to ensure best-in-class data quality. Loan activity, such as prepayments, incremental add-ons and rate changes, are actively monitored and maintained throughout the life of the loan.
